sitions until the British armor smashed through to their relief.

The critical situation of these forces, has been definitely improved, a spokesman said, "now that the British have reached a point where they can shell the attacking Nazis."

Meanwhile, American First Army columns under Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, fighting in the area of Aachen have jabbed their way into possession of the German city of Stolberg after savage fighting in the streets.

The British Second Army reported successes in their fighting south of the Leopold canal in Belgium where Germans were cleared out of the Hulst-Axel region from Ter Neuzen westward to the sea.

On the Italian front the hard-hitting columns of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American Fifth Army widened their breach driven through the Gothic line west of Firenze and drove their way through fierce opposition to the threshold of the 3,000-foot Futa pass less than 40 miles from Bologna.

Huns May Withdraw

There were indications the Germans, threatened with flanking, were withdrawing from the Futa pass which earlier was reported even more strongly fortified than bloody Cassino.

The British Eighth Army made important advances in the central and Adriatic sections of the Italian front, it was reported today from the headquarters of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, after the Allies outflanked the eastern end of the Gothic line with the capture of the strategic port of Rimini.

Fifth Army units occupied high ground to the north of Firenze and widened their Gothic line breach with the capture of Monte Citeria and Monte Torontale.

Allied forces in Italy were given strong naval and air support. British warships blasted German communication lines along which the Nazis were withdrawing north of Rimini and an American warship shelled German transport units and the rail yard at Ventimiglia along the Italian Riviera.

Tactical air force units swept German positions all along the Gothic line and wrecked rail bridges north of Padua in the Po valley.

Soviet forces who captured Tallinn, capital of Estonia, in their new offensive to clear the Baltics of German forces, swept forward in an unrelenting drive which at last reports had liberated 800 more towns and villages while other Red armies in Latvia had pushed their way to within six miles of the strategic port of Riga, capital of Latvia.

Far to the south of the flaming Baltic front the massive Soviet armies intensified their drive to knock Hungary, Hitler's last Balkan ally, out of the war. Early today the Russians and Romanians were disclosed to have advanced through western Romania for 15 miles to seize the town of Arad on the 1939 frontier of Hungary.

clean-cut decision on raising the "Little Steel" wage freeze, it was said.

One government labor official predicted that labor will insist on an outright boost in hourly wage rates and then fight to hold on to this gain through a V-E Day wage program when industry is reconverted to peacetime pursuits.

Veiled Warning

Both Green and John P. Frey, president of the AFL's metal trades department, who represents nearly a million AFL shipyard workers, appeared before the WLB with a veiled warning that their members may forget the no-strike pledge if denied wage increases.

The two labor leaders asserted that the WLB had set aside the industry's 1942 agreement providing for an increase in wages of shipbuilding workers commensurate with increases in wartime living costs.

In May, 1942, Frey recalled, the shipyard workers voluntarily accepted an eight-cent hourly increase instead of the thirteen cents to which they were entitled in response to President Roosevelt's anti-inflation plea. Since then, however, living costs have not been stabilized as promised and the WLB has refused further increases, he argued.

Green charged the government had "unilaterally breached the 1942 contract."

"The workers are seething with resentment," he said. "They are ripe for the agitation of any demagogue. It is no wonder that patriotic American workers are listening to those who call for revocation of the no-strike pledge."

farm workers be denied security? Why should domestic servants be excluded? Why should those who work for themselves be denied this security? Why should large numbers of white collar workers be excluded? Because there are difficulties of administration? That is not a good enough answer.

Will Reach Objective

"In bringing about the necessary broadening of old-age and survivors' insurance, we will, of course, meet with many problems. We will have to adopt different methods of collecting the social security tax and avoid bookkeeping burden on small employers, family-type farmers or others we seek to protect. If we make up our minds that protection against old age is something to which every American is entitled, we shall find a way to reach that objective."

Gov. Dewey outlined his social progress expansion program to what was described as the largest political audience in history. The huge coliseum, scene of many titanic football struggles, was packed with humanity. Acres of men and women sat in the warmth of a Los Angeles Summer evening and heard the Republican nominee go far beyond any other presidential candidate of his party in promising to extend the frontiers of protection to the aged, the needy, the sick, the unemployed and the returning veteran.

Draws Cheers

Cheers rolled through the big coliseum as Gov. Dewey called for: "Extension of unemployment insurance to groups now unprotected."

Amendment of the law to make sure that men and women in military service do not suffer a gap in their old-age benefit credits through absence from private employment.

Return to the states of the employment service, surrendered by them to the federal government during the war emergency.

Development, with the help of the medical profession, of a means for assuring medical service to persons of small means.

Encouragement of states and local communities in the establishment of fullest information service for veterans.

The Roosevelt administration, declared Gov. Dewey, did not bring social progress to America, nor did that progress commence in 1933.

"It began when the first settlers came to this continent," he said. "It was in the blood of those who came to these shores to found a new kind of nation. It is in our blood today."

Gov. Dewey said the social security act, established by non-partisan vote in 1935, has not been materially improved or extended in nine years. After outlining his own program for improvement and extension, he added:

"Here is a program to pick up and carry forward—an American system of social progress. Out of the suffering of war there has emerged a high resolve in the minds of the American people that the world we live in must become a better world."

"To that end we must work together to increase the security of the individual against the hazards of old age, of unemployment, of ill health. We must work together to increase the security of our society against the hazards of mass unemployment, falling prices and periodic depression. But we must never forget that security alone is only half the goal. The other half is freedom and opportunity. Without these, there can be no real security."

DEMobilIZATION IN ENGLAND TO AWAIT JAP FALL

LONDON, Sept. 23 — British soldiers and civilians today studied a huge plan for a sweeping manpower changeover to be put into effect between the collapse of Germany and the turning of Britain's full power to the war against Japan.

The main points of the British plan provide for no general demobilization of armed forces until after complete defeat of the Axis in all parts of the world.

Compulsory recruiting will be continued in order to release men who have served long periods in the armed forces, and young men now engaged in essential industry, like the manufacture of munitions, will be called up to replace discharged veterans.

Some soldiers may be transferred from the armed forces to begin the great task of reconstructing war damage in Britain. There will be a provision for recalling men to the service if they leave reconstruction work after being discharged from the armed forces.

Washington to work for the Dewey Bricker ticket. The new committee headed by Sen. E. D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, recently defeated in South Carolina, chose as its slogan, "Farmers for Freedom."

Its announced aim is to get out the farm vote to offset the pro-Roosevelt efforts of Sidney Hillman's CIO Political Action Committee.

"Our committee," said Smith, "proposes to give economic freedom for the farmer. They are not free men under the New Deal. It is time to break the shackles of the New Deal."

Political observers looked for the President's speech to reveal the pattern of his campaign—whether he is ready to trade punches with Dewey, moving eastward now for an important speech at Oklahoma City Monday.

While cabinet members and congressional leaders were not invited to attend the Teamsters' dinner because of space limitations, it was disclosed that Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan planned to be present. Party headquarters in Washington said that Hannegan's current western tour schedule contemplated a return in time for the Roosevelt campaign opener.

GADGET CIVILIZATION

FROM unconventional Henry Ford, who has always gone his own way regardless of competitors' opinion, recently came another declaration of what he considers an automotive bill of rights. He proposes to raise wages again as soon as the government will let him. He thinks the $5-a-day minimum he adopted in 1914, and the $7-a-day to which he rose in 1929, are not enough. But he cannot go ahead now on his own violation, because of government control through the War Labor Board.

The reasons he gives for higher pay are unusually interesting, representing a frank mixture of generosity and pride. "As long as I live," he says, "I want to pay the highest wages in the automobile business." But it depends, he added, on the workers in the plants giving "a full day's work for a full day's pay." And right there is an entering point for controversy. People might argue endlessly about just what constitutes "a full day's work" and "a full day's pay."

Mr. Ford makes it look simple. His economic standard is, "enough money for everybody to own a home, a piece of land and a car."

That is unquestionably desirable. But others may say it is only the beginning of a full and adequate life. What about education, culture, development of the intellect, expansion of knowledge and all that goes to the making of the highest type of manhood and womanhood? Gadgets are only a crude beginning.

LODGE'S MEMORIAL

NOMINATE a man who lives in a two-family house! Never! So Henry Cabot Lodge, wrecker of the 1919 Versailles treaty and the League of Nations, spoke of Calvin Coolidge, then beginning to be talked of for President.

There spoke the perfect American snob. If Lodge had had less contempt for the average man, he might have been more interested in making this a peaceful world for him to live in. Lodge is now chiefly remembered for his destruction of the League. As Karl Schriftgiesser says in his new biography, "The Gentleman from Massachusetts": There are those who feel that his real memorial was not a piece of bronze, "but the surge of death that roared across Europe in the Autumn of 1939, the catastrophe that we call the Second World War."

Japanese Still Hope To Cut China in Two

House Food Price Probe Committee Needs Lowyer

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Allied military men are concerned about the success of the Japanese drive in southern China. Enemy strategy is designed to cut China in half, and if it succeeds it may prolong the Far Eastern conflict for many months.

Aware that United States land and sea forces are poised to strike at China's east coast when the time is ripe, Japan has the cream of her army deployed in China and Manchuria in the desperate race against time.

America's ace in the hole is the anticipated move into the Philippines—a drive that should cut Japan off from oil, rubber and tin in the East Indies and Malaya.

Once American planes can operate from Philippine bases, virtually all of Japan's ill-gotten gains south of the homeland and Manchuria will be under steady attack. And more important, Japan proper will be entirely cut off from her conquered sources of raw materials in the entire East Indies.

IT IS GENERALLY AGREED in official Washington that history probably has missed one of the choicest tidbits of all time—the expression on Adolf Hitler's face as he received the running account of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's blitzkrieg march through France.

Washington well remembers newsreel shots of Hitler's impromptu "dances" when the armistice ending French resistance was signed in 1940. But it suspects that no cameramen are present to record for

TWIT ABOUT "ELEANOR"

WASHINGTON—White House intimates are still puzzled over the President's first greeting to Winston Churchill when he arrived in Quebec. They don't know whether he was half kidding the Prime Minister, or what, when he called out: "Eleanor's here."

Undoubtedly the President must know that his wife and Churchill don't get along particularly well. Certainly Mrs. Roosevelt knows it—in fact, jokes about it a little ruefully.

"Poor Winston," she once told friends. "Whenever he is here for dinner, he has to sit by me."

She referred, of course, to the fact that the ranking guest of honor at a White House dinner must always sit at the right of the First Lady. And she implied, of course, that she and Churchill didn't agree on many things—which is true.

Mrs. Roosevelt publicly differed with Churchill when he praised dictator Franco in Spain. She is known to frown most decidedly on his ironclad views that India cannot be given independence. And being a friend of Madame Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese people, she also doesn't enthuse over Churchill's refusal so far to give Hong Kong back to China.

In view of all this, many White House intimates think the President was good-naturedly twitting the Prime Minister when he called out in Quebec, "Eleanor's here."

RECONVERSION SABOTAGE NIPPED

Decisive new War Production boss "Cap" Krug has just put through a quiet order overruling one of the neatest pieces of civilian sabotage perpetrated during the turbulent Donald Nelson regime.

It illustrated the manner in which Nelson was undercut by the banker dollar-a-year-men around him.

Nelson had fought for weeks to permit companies not busy with war work to start manufacture. But the bigger companies, still tied up with war orders, together with their $1-a-year men inside the WPB, opposed. Finally, Nelson pushed his ruling through, despite opposition from the Baruch faction in the War Department, which threw up all sorts of obstacles.

Manufacturers, before they could begin peacetime operation, had to get the OK of the War Manpower Commission and various other officials. However, if they did get this OK, they could go ahead and make alarm clocks, electric irons, and all sorts of things the public long has waited for.

However, Nelson did not know what was going to happen behind his back.

One of WPB's big-business vice chairmen fighting reconversion is Sam Anderson of the Lehman Brothers banking firm. Anderson happens to be head of the requirements committee which rules on what materials are required for each type of work, and what shall be allocated for it.

So Anderson's requirements committee held a meeting to determine how much steel could be allocated to civilian reconversion under Nelson's plan. Most of the interested agencies of the Government are represented on the requirements committee, and their views were split. The Army flatly opposed giving any more steel to civilian industry. The Maritime Commission supported the Army. However, the Navy, one of the greatest users of steel, voted that steel could be spared for civilian use, and many other Government agencies ruled likewise.

In the end, however, banker Anderson made the decision himself. He ruled that

DIET AND HEALTH
Home Medicine Remedies

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THERE ARE half a dozen conditions that the average citizen, including Mrs. Average Citizen, feel that they are competent to treat by tried and true household medicine remedies, without even consulting the doctor.

The first is putting iodine or mercurochrome on cuts or skin injuries and strapping them over with sterile gauze. I think Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen are right about this and it is a sign of progress that they have learned how to do it with good technique.

Second, most skin eruptions treated with salve—zinc oxide ointment, or, if on the foot, whether athlete or not, Whitfield ointment. I would score Mr. and Mrs. A. C. about 60 per cent on this. They probably do as much good in the 60 per cent of cases as the professional dermatologist.

Home Use of Cathartics

Third, cathartics. This is the poor man's medical specialty. No darn doctor can tell him when he needs salts or senna. I wouldn't score him very high on this. He does a lot of harm, creates a habit and indigestion, and never knows enough to lay off when there is acute pain in the abdomen.

Fourth, colds. Aspirin, quinine, harsher liniment. Well, he can have that, so far as I am concerned. "Never call a doctor for a cold" is just as good a motto as "God bless our home."

Fifth, sleeping medicines. Since these cannot be obtained except on a prescription from a physician in most states, the practice has slowed up, but not much. I don't think it does much harm.

Sixth, something for the nerves, and this is a very curious situation. The medicine usually employed to "soothe myself down with" is some form of bromide. And it does a great deal of harm, partly because it is easy to obtain, partly because large doses can be taken without any obvious immediate effect, and partly because bromide intoxication is not very often recognized even by members of the medical profession.

Bromides Harmful

Bromides are salts of bromine—sodium, potassium, strontium. Their pharmacological action is as a sedative on the cortex of the brain, particularly the motor area. They were once the standby and are still used extensively for epilepsy. But by quieting motor muscle restlessness they quiet the nerves all over and induce sleep. So they are the main ingredients of all kinds of medicines used for nerves and hangovers, and it is very easy for a nervous person to get the habit of taking them without knowing what they contain and without knowing that they accumulate in the body and cause true intoxication.

All doctors know that when full bromide dosage occurs there is a nasty looking pustular eruption on the skin. But not all know that before the stage of eruption appears a state of mental confusion, diminished power of concentration, unsteady gait, even hallucinations and delirium may occur from regular bromide dosage. In one year in a small hospital 20 of these cases were brought in.

Fortunately the treatment is very simple and effective. It consists in giving plenty of ordinary table salt—sodium chloride. The bromides replace the chlorine atom in the body tissues, become fixed there and are eliminated only very slowly. But the chlorides, if administered in good quantity, drive out the bromides.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. F.:—What is phenobarbital and what is it used for?

Answer: The drug's name for phenobarbital is luminal. It is used as a sleeping tablet for insomnia. Also for epilepsy.

M. K. W.:—Has a black widow spider got a red spot on the back and are they considered very dangerous?

Answer: The female black widow spider has a red hour-glass shaped mark on her abdomen. The bites are painful, but not often serious. The poison sac is under the control of voluntary muscles and often the spider does not empty any poison into the wound. The best treatment seems to be to apply a flaming match head to the wound as soon as possible after the bite. If nervous symptoms develop, they can be controlled by injections of calcium gluconate.

Mrs. D. M.:—In one of your articles you gave a dinner menu of meat, potatoes, gravy and apple pie as a well balanced meal. This nearly tickled my husband's shoes off as it comprises his favorite meal seven times a week. Please tell me if vegetables can be safely omitted for good health?

Answer: I think some bread, butter and fresh fruit juices should be added to meat, potatoes, gravy and apple pie for the well balanced meal. But I am assuming the fresh fruit, toast and an egg for breakfast. Vegetables are considered one of the essential groups for well balanced eating, but stressing them can be overdone and made into a fad. Man is a very adaptable animal about his food.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

THE THOUGHT of "naming the day" came to Laura through the first quarter of an hour of waiting. Once or twice the phone rang, but was answered by Miss Tiller outside. Laura smiled faintly. I was strange how she had never worried about Miss Tiller or, indeed, anyone else, until this girl from New York had come along. And once she and Russell were married there would be no cause for worry, either. He wasn't the kind of man to do things in a sneaky way and have affairs. He . . .

She broke off as her casual glance caught a letter only half covered by a blotter. It was headed, "Dear Laura," and began:

This is a hard letter to write, but it is easier than trying to explain otherwise. Last night . . .

The letter broke off there. She smiled and sat back in the big chair, holding the sheet of paper in her long fingers. So he had realized what he'd done in spite of his seeming indifference last night. After sleeping on it, he'd felt he was safer in writing a letter of apology. And last night did need explanation. But she wasn't going to ask for any. She had no desire to make him tell her. It was all the doings of that Anne Wilson—there was no doubt of that, though probably he would be chivalrous and try to defend her. So it was best to ignore the whole thing. Once she and Russell had agreed on things, then Anne could be disposed of quietly.

It all seemed very easy, as things did when she gave them her complete attention. She was smiling when Russell came into the room. He almost plunged in. She got up and, putting both arms about him, kissed his lips lightly.

"Don't look so surprised. I just dropped in."

He swallowed a lump in his throat. "Miss Tiller says you've been here an hour."

She laughed. "Suppose I have. It's been nice waiting for you here. I don't think I ever had a chance to sit in your office before. I like it. It's a good place for thinking. And you know you might at least thank me for waiting so long."

She drew a deep breath. "I'm glad you came. I want to talk to you."

She sank back into the big chair and smiled up at him. "I know. You tried to write me a letter about it. Since it said, 'Dear Laura, I actually dared to take it up and read it. Do you mind terribly?'"

"No." He sat in his desk chair. "It is really much better this way."

"Of course it is." She made a gesture of sweeping inconsequential away. "Let's forget about last night. Today is much more important. On a beautiful day let's be happy. We've been intelligent too long. Now let's simply be sensible and human. Russell, we can't sit and look at each other forever. I suggest we get married at once, today, tomorrow, as soon and as simply as possible."

He sat looking out of the window as she spoke. When she had finished he turned slowly to face her.

He was very serious and his voice had a quiet intensity.

"When did you decide that?"

"What a question. We've been engaged for five years. Isn't it time we made up our minds?"

"Yes. It is time. That's what I was going to write you about."

She leaned forward. "Russell, let's be quite sensible and forget all about last night. Anne wandered out and you met her on Morris street. I didn't know and locked the door, so you stood talking with her until I let her in. It's as simple as all that, so there's no need to bring Anne into it at all."

"But there is."

Her eyes narrowed. "Are you trying to avoid talking about our marriage?"

"No, Laura. It has to be settled."

"Good. Then how soon can it be? I don't want any preparations or announcements. We can defer our honeymoon if you're busy right now. We—"

He shook his head, stopping her. "I'm sorry, Laura, but that isn't the idea at all. You can hate me if you will, but I'll have to risk that. There are times when I'm thinking and one thing only is supremely important."

She raised her voice. "Is anything more important than our marriage?"

"We aren't getting married. Laura. That's what I was writing you about. I was asking you to release me from our engagement."

"Release me?" Laura's eyes were wide with astonishment as she stood up.

"Yes, Laura. He got up heavily and tried to take her hand. "I know I haven't been fair to you. But it would be worse if I married you when I don't love you."

The telephone rang and he answered it. She stared at him numbly while he talked. It was maddening. Didn't love her! How could he say it? They had been engaged for five years. She stood limply waiting for him to finish.

Russell hung up and faced her. "Believe me, I am very sorry. Laura. But we've both got to face what can't be helped. For a long time I haven't been sure of myself. Last night I knew once and for all."

"Knew what?"

"I love Anne. I know you won't like that. I've told her I love her."

"Anne? Anne Wilson? You must be mad! You don't realize what you say!"

He took both her hands. "Laura, you must be sensible."

She yanked away and her eyes were blazing now. "Anne. You love Anne. You don't even know who she is. You don't know what she is."

"I only know I asked her to marry me!"

The dirty sneer! I knew it. The little jar! "Cheer up!"

He caught her arm. "Laura. Please be sensible."

"Why should I be? You've been my fiancee for five years. I've waited for you. Now you think you love this little—"

"Stop it!" His voice rang out.

commandingly. "We'll have no more names. Call me anything you want to. I have hurt you. I have failed you. I have been unfair to you and kept you waiting while I didn't know my own mind. Hate me, if you like. I deserve it. But leave Anne out."

Laura's hands were clenched at her sides to steady herself. "What do you expect me to do after you've filled me?"

"I haven't. Laura, you can be so wise when you want to. You can be big enough to face what I can't help any more than you can. You wouldn't want to marry a knowing I love someone else. It wouldn't make you happy. You're too clever to ask me. I'll do all I can. You must break off, of course, and let it be known you're not interested in me any more."

"And have that sneak gloat over me?"

"Anne doesn't gloat. If you want to know, she refused me. Said my duty was to you and—"

Laura's laugh was hysterical. "That's enough." She yanked open the door to the outer office, where Miss Tiller sat supposedly immersed in shorthand notes. A moment more and she was running down the stairs to the street. Once there, however, she pulled herself together, and managed to walk quietly to the spot where she kept her car. Passing her library, she saw two people waiting for her and she managed to smile as she told them she was closing up for the day. "As her mother wasn't feeling well and needed her. It was the work of a minute to change the sign on the door to 'Closed for the day.' She was lily calm as she got into her car and started for Talbot.

The house was empty. Molly, the cook, told her mother was out but would be home soon to lunch. Laura spoke carefully. "Molly, go to Miss Wilson's room and pack her things and put them on the porch. I want you to do it at once. Never mind about lunch. Don't stand there and stare at me. Do as I tell you."

"But I can't, Miss Laura," cried the astonished colored woman.

Laura smiled. "Then you are discharged. Just take off your apron and go. We have no use for you here any more, Molly, when you can't obey orders."

"But please, Miss Laura—"

The girl walked out coldly and went to the phone, where she called Miss Withers. Her voice was sweet and she said she was so excited she had to cry up and say she and Russell were getting married at the end of the week. Very quietly married, so it was to be a secret. Miss Withers would understand, of course. She listened as Miss Withers assured her she understood perfectly. Then she hung up and went up to Anne's room. Laura could be swift when occasion demanded, and in a few minutes Anne's bags stood on the front porch and the room contained no sign of her occupancy. Then she sat down in the living room to wait.

WHAT WAS THE BID?

TO LEAD or not to lead the suit your partner bid depends on the situation in which he made his call. Just what kind of a bid was it? An opening bid shows pretty good strength, an overall of an opponent's bid may be weaker, a response to a bid by yourself can be still weaker, and an answer to your informatory double may indicate no high cards whatever. Leading the last kind of suit may be worse than futile, not to say vapid.

his partner had bid, and after that his chance to stop the contract was gone. West ruffed it with the spade K, ruffed the heart 3 with the spade 8 in order to guard against four hearts by South, scored the spade A and led the J to the Q.

Now the heart K and Q exhausted South of the suit, and two more hearts followed. On the four hearts. West discarded two cards from each minor, and North was unwise enough to do likewise. Thereupon the club 2 to the K put North in with the A and he was able also to cash the Q. But now he could do nothing but take one diamond trick, and had to give west the game trick with the diamond K.

If North had taken into account the fact that he covered the heart bid out of his partner with his double, he would have led differently. A spade would have wrecked the declarer, if the defenders were prepared to follow it up with another spade when next they got in the lead.

Congress has given the committee the green light in its probe of the spread in food prices between the farmer and consumer and Representative Flanagan (D.) of Virginia has promised action "in three or four days." But the committee can't find a counsel.

The committee, now led by Senator James M. Mead (D.) of New York, scarcely began its inquiry into surplus war property disposal when it bluntly announced a surveillance plan which, in view of the group's past record, few persons will care to challenge.

The committee directed that agencies must file with it detailed reports on war plant or other property sales, disclosing costs, sale price, name of buyer, and in the case of war plants what he intends to do with it.

All reports would be open to public scrutiny, particularly the press and radio.

To those who have forgotten the committee's relentless exposures of the Canal oil project and Army airplane motors, it dropped this veiled hint:

"Temptations to profit materially will be great."

THE ASTRAL configurations for this day must be read as most conflicting and contradictory. There may be all sorts of sudden, peculiar intriguing adventures and experiences, with certain contacts of a public, community, or fraternal relationship assuming major importance and giving a cherished opportunity for bewildering play and power. However, the way may be beset with danger, difficulty and treachery, unless particular caution, shrewdness, and attention to word, speech and legal matters be managed with prudence, reflection and sound judgement. Shun extravagance of funds and energies.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves deep in a year of unusual intriguing or strange situations, in which much is to be gained or lost according to the astuteness, soundness, shrewdness and self restraints mustered in making decisions, or coming to conclusions. Under a bewildering state of mind and emotions there is room for failure through confusion and because of sinister snares, illusions, intrigues or duplicity. Excesses, extravagances and careless involvements through words, writings, agreements or emotions should be submitted to sound and sensible judgement. This also in personal affairs.

A child born on this day may be blessed with unusual talents, of an intuitive or subjective quality, making it an easy prey to sharpers or schemers. It may suffer financial loss through careless speech, or litigation.

For Sunday, September 24

SUNDAY's horoscope is a disturbing and disruptive one, with much of sudden and unlooked for adventure or experience, although it is not wanting in the promises of eventual happiness and good fortune. It may be that a complete demolition or breaking down of certain old or unwelcome conditions or ties may be necessary to put the life and its associations upon a firmer, happier and more friendly basis.

Those whose birthday it is may have to endure a sudden and disruptive visitation, with complete uprooting of old foundations and affiliations antecedent to a rebuilding of the life and its ambitions upon a firmer, happier and more progressive basis. Much commotion should not be permitted to undermine the health, nervous or emotional stability or sound judgement. Financial loss or other duplicity are the penalty for ill-considered actions or decisions.

A child born on this day may have erratic or strange proclivities, being impulsive, temperamental and high strung. It should be given careful supervision.

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 24 is II Samuel 6, 7, the Golden Text being Isaiah 60:19, "Jehovah will be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory."

DAVID HAD overcome the Philistines and established himself in the "City of David," Jerusalem. He felt then that the Ark of the Lord, which had been at Gibeath for the last 70 or 80 years, should be brought to Jerusalem.

For this purpose he gathered "the chosen men of Israel," about 30,000, and took them with him to the house of Abinadab, where the ark was put upon an ox-drawn cart and the journey of four miles began. The ark was the "symbol of the covenant between Jehovah and Israel," and "the place where He chiefly chose to manifest Himself by visible tokens to His people."

Uzzah and Ahio, sons of Abinadab, drove the cart, and "David and all the house of Israel played before the Lord on all manner of instruments made of fir wood, even on harps, and on psalteries, and on timbrels, and on cornets, and on cymbals."

Uzzah Struck Dead
When they were come to Nachon's threshing floor (where that was we do not know) the ark was shaken on the road and Uzzah put his hand on it to steady it. The Lord was displeased at this act of sacrilege. No one was supposed to touch the ark itself, only the poles attached for the purpose, or until the priests had covered it completely. For this presumption the Lord struck Uzzah dead by the side of the ark. This seems to us a cruel thing, but our commentator explains that it was necessary that the people should be taught the "unapproachable majesty of the Holy God."

David was displeased at this tragedy, and also frightened, fearful probably, that he, too, might die in some such manner. "How shall the ark of the Lord come to me?" he asked, and decided not to bring it into Jerusalem, but had it carried to the house of Obededom where it stayed for three months. While it was in his house Obededom and all his household were greatly blessed.

When David had been told how Obededom and all pertaining to him were blessed, he lost his fear and had the ark brought into the city.

"When they that bore the ark of the Lord had gone six paces, he sacrificed oxen and fattlings."

"And David danced before the Lord with all his might; and David was girded with a linen ephod"—a priestly robe.

"So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the Lord with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet."

As the ark was brought into the city, Michal, David's wife and daughter of Saul, "looked through a window and saw the king leaping and dancing before the Lord, and she despised him in her heart."

Tabernacle Set in Place
"And they brought in the ark of the Lord, and set it in his place, in the midst of the tabernacle that David had pitched for it; and David offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the Lord."

After this David blessed the people in the Lord's name, and gave to every man and woman a cake of bread, and a good piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine, then all dispersed to their homes.

When he entered his own home to bless it, he was met by Michal who scolded that he had lowered himself in the eyes of his servants by dancing before the ark.

And David said unto Michal, "It was before the Lord, which chose me before thy father, and before all his house, to appoint me ruler over the people of the Lord, over Israel; therefore will I play before the Lord." It is said that Michal was punished by having no child "unto the day of her death."

Now we meet Nathan, the great prophet of the Lord during David's and Saul's reigns. David proposed to Nathan that he should build a temple in which to house the ark, but that night the word of the Lord came to Nathan and he was told to go to David and say that David was not to build the temple, but his son, who was to succeed him, would do that. The Lord promised that the children of Israel should have their own place, unmolested by enemies, and that David and his house should rule over them forever.

On hearing this David "went in and sat before the Lord, saying, 'Who am I, O Lord God? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me hitherto?' In this spirit of humility and thankfulness David worshipped the Lord who had blessed him and his people."

Henness will sing, "Thou Wilt Keep Me In Perfect Peace", by Oley Speaks, Hunter Chambers will be at the organ console.

TO SPEAK AT CONFERENCE
The Rev. Carl L. Kennedy will address the Planning Conference of the Presbyterian church of Washington C. H. Sunday afternoon. The Rev. John Abernethy, pastor of the Washington C. H. church, was guest speaker last Sunday at the Officers' Retreat of the local church.

Giles signed a four-year renewal yesterday. He came to Cincinnati in 1937 to succeed Larry S. McPhail when the latter took over the operation of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"We have contracted with Giles as general manager through 1948," said Powell Crosley, Jr., president of the Reds, "because he has proved in the last eight seasons that he is one of baseball's foremost executives."

Thrilling Touchdown Drive Gives Tigers 12-6 Win Over Indians

A 95-yard touchdown drive in the closing minutes of the game gave Cincinnati high school Tigers a 12-6 victory Friday night in an exciting game that opened the South Central Ohio league season for Hillsboro and the Tigers.

Thrilling runs, exciting passes, pile driving fullback plunges, good football and bad, fistfuffs on the sidelines and about everything that could be seen on a football field gave spectators plenty of action.

Both teams scored in the second quarter and both missed later opportunities before the payoff drive came.

Taking over on their own five-yard line midway of the fourth quarter the Tigers marched, or rather went by air, over the Hillsboro goal line.

Hill crashed for five yards and then picked up another. Sims crossed over the visitors by passing to Hennis, good for 10 yards and a first down on the 21-yard line. Heath picked up five yards in two tries and Sims again passed, this time to Dade who made a first down on the 35-yard line. Hennis was stopped and Hill could make only a yard so another pass went to Dade. A pass fell short, then Sims tossed a long one that Dade pulled out of the air on the Hillsboro 22. Two more passes fell incomplete before the officials ruled Indian defenders had interfered with the pass receiver on the two yard line and the Tigers had first down there. Two tries at the line failed and the Tigers were penalized five yards for being offside.

Another pass fell incomplete, then Sims fired one which Dade caught in the south end zone and rolled out of sight with the ball. Hennis attempted drop kick was no good. Only a few minutes were left in the game and Hillsboro unleashed a desperation pass attack that ended when Sims intercepted a heave. The Tigers stalled out the remaining few seconds.

Hillsboro scored first after neither team could get far in the first period. Shortly after the second quarter opened Hillsboro took over on the Cincinnati 44 and set out for touchdown land. A McDermott to John Hamilton pass on the first play was good for 22 yards. Here McDowell, battering ram fullback took over and plunged and butted his way across the goal line. He carried the ball five straight times, picking up from three to six yards each try. His attempt to place kick the extra point failed when the center sent back a bad pass.

The Tigers took the kickoff and did some marching of their own. An air raid gave the Tigers most

DICK WAKEFIELD SPARKS TIGERS

Three Leaders Win But Detroit Gains Another Half Game

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—If the thing could be accomplished without attracting the attention of the law-enforcers, a great many people in St. Louis, New York and Boston would like to kidnap a young man named Dick Wakefield and keep him hostage until the current American League pennant race is over.

For Dick, restored to the Tigers on July 13, has racked up eleven homers for Detroit and has given the charges of Steve O'Neill enough punch to keep his outfit a game ahead of the St. Louis Browns, 3 1/2 contests ahead of the New York Yankees and eight ahead of the Boston Red Sox, who are out of the race unless a miracle occurs.

The rangy Wakefield batted the Tigers into a 7 to 4 triumph over the Red Sox Friday, and brought in another run in the second half of the twin bill to aid the Tigers in chalking up an 8 to 6 nightcap victory. Dick pounced on Joe Bowman for a four-run circuit clout in the first game to hand Rufe Gentry a well-deserved six-hit win. In the nightcap, Walter Beck, last of three Tiger hurriers, was credited with the triumph when the Tigers clinched the afterpiece with a two-run rally in the eighth.

There are other heroes, however, even among the less successful outfits. Ernie Bonham, who has taken a severe cuffing lately, pitched the Yankees to a desperately-needed 7 to 3 win over the Cleveland Indians on 10 hits. The Yankees ran wild in the ninth inning, scoring five runs to hand Al Smith the defeat.

The Browns kept only one game off the pace with a 4 to 2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics. Ailing Bob Muncie was tabbed for the win, although he was relieved by Sig Jakucki in the seventh. Both flingers yielded only six hits and ol' Bob Newsum absorbed another loss.

In the National League, the New York Giants dropped an 8 to 1 decision to the Chicago Cubs, and now have no chance of finishing in the first division. Hank Wyse kept the Giants well in control, and was prevented from scoring a shutout only by Bruce Sloan's ninth-inning homer, his first in the major leagues. Harry Feldman was charged with the loss.

The St. Louis Cardinals, with the NL pennant safely stashed away, allowed the Boston Braves to run away with 11 to 2 triumph. Three Card pitchers were hammered for 14 hits, including homers by Butch Nieman and Tommy Holmes, and Nate Andrews chalked up his 15th win of the campaign on seven bingles.

WALNUT SOFTBALL TEAM SCORES WIN AT ASHVILLE

Walnut township school softball team scored a 2-0 victory over Ashville in an overtime game Friday afternoon at Ashville.

Bumgarner hit a home run with Heath on base in the first of the ninth to account for visitors' victory.

Batters for Walnut were Logsdon and Fisher while Speakman and Wilson worked for Ashville.

TOP GRID TEAM TUMBLED FROM LOFTY PERCHE

Massillon, Newark Sub Defeats In Second Week Of High School Play

By International News Service
The Massillon Tigers, rated 11 week as one of the top scholastic eleven of the still-young 11 gridiron season, today followed way of all champions in meeting defeat sooner or later.

A strong Cleveland Cathedral eleven blasted Massillon hopes for a second undefeated season in a row in downing the Tigers last night 6 to 0.

With defeat of Massillon, 10 other Stark county eleven became just about tops in the state on the basis of games played thus far. The Tigers' bitter rivals, the Canton McKinley Bulldogs, scored more than 50 points for the second week in a row in downing Youngstown Woodrow Wilson, 59 to 0.

But Massillon wasn't alone in the depths of despair. Newark rated third in an International News Service poll last week, fell to a powerful Columbus Norwalk, 26 to 6. The loss broke Newark's 10-game winning streak and gave Columbus football fan the hope of having a top scholastic eleven for the first time years.

To keep the ranks of undefeated even thinner, Lima South tumbled back Fostoria, 19 to 6, to break a 12-winning streak for the Fostoria, undefeated last year.

Warren, expected to be a factor in the pigskin-crazy northeast section of the state, continued powerful ways in downing Youngtown Ursuline, 26 to 0.

Still another eleven in the first ten games last week suffered mar to its record. Portsmouth, tenth in the poll, was tied 4-4 Charleston, W. Va., 13 to 13.

Springfield showed evidence of a strong squad in turning back Dayton Stivers, 14 to 13, while Lorain, one of the top teams of the state last year, kept its string intact with a 13 to 7 win over Fremont Ross.

Canton Timken gave evidence of perhaps challenging Canton McKinley's claims for top Stark county honors in downing Ursuline, 59 to 0. And Tuscarawas counted boosted as its top eleven, a New Philadelphia team which whipped Dennison, 36 to 0.

Toledo Waite came back from defeat last week at the hands of Toledo Libbey and downed Toledo Woodward, 41 to 0, while a strong Zanesville team won its second in a row in defeating Columbus East 28 to 7.

American Girls Have Little To Fear From Mademoiselles

G. I. JOES NOT IMPRESSED BY FRENCH BEAUTY

Letters From Europe Tell Of Continued Loyalty To Home Women

American women do not need to worry that the famed "smartness and chic" of the French women will make American soldiers forget the girls they left at home.

"French women can't hold a candle to American women" is the general theme expressed in letters sent home by G. I. Joes who have made their way into the country which is famous for its beautiful women.

Some soldiers are attracted by the French women, but they are the ones who have been away from home a long time and when they return to the United States they will soon forget the women over there, reports from the front state.

According to first hand reports the French women do very well with what they have. Dinah Shore, famous radio and screen personality who has just returned from a tour entertaining troops, says: "Their makeup is not as good as ours and they don't look as natural. And they all look a little older—four years have aged them."

Americans Taller

"American women are taller and more graceful," she added. "One French woman told me, 'we're all a little undernourished and you Americans are so tall. Your backs are straighter and your men are so wonderful in appearance.'"

French fashions have not yet been produced in sizable numbers yet. Workers have been kept from shops or dragged away to work for the German war plants. Electricity and materials have been scarce, also contributing to the delay in getting fashion production going ahead again.

Interesting stories about the French fashion leaders hatred of the Germans have been sent home since the French were liberated.

In four years not one designer produced a green costume, using this method to show their hatred of the German uniform color.

German women have heavy-set, wide faces so the French hair-dressers would dress their hair with masses of curls at the cheeks to make them look even worse. Towering hats were created to accentuate the bullet-shaped heads of many Germans.

SPITTING ON SIDEWALK TO RESULT IN FINES

Spitting on the sidewalk can result in a $5 fine, Safety Director Thurman Miller warned Saturday.

Mr. Miller said the practice was becoming prevalent at Main and Court street, creating a health menace at the busiest corner in the city.

He said that signs would be erected and violators prosecuted if the practice continues.

STORMY CAREER OF EX-GOVERNOR FERGUSON ENDS

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 23—One of the Southwest's stormiest political careers was at an end with the passing of Former Gov. James E. Ferguson of Texas.

The two-time governor who was impeached during his second term, but who then helped direct the destinies of the state through two terms his wife, Mrs. Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson served as chief executive, died in his Austin home. He was 73.

He had been in failing health since last February when he suffered a stroke. At the bedside were Mrs. Ferguson and their two daughters.

He was a comparatively unknown lawyer, banker and farmer when he was elected governor in 1914.

His campaign was based on promises to the tenant farmer and rural laborer and a vow to veto all legislation designed to control liquor traffic.

He carried out his veto promise and also carried on a feud with the University of Texas, climaxed when he vetoed a $1,600,000 appropriation for university expenses.

Hundreds of students staged a protest march on the capital. He explained his action by declaring people were going hog wild about higher education.

Soon after he was re-elected, impeachment charges were filed against him, the Anti-Saloon League, the W. C. T. U. and proponents of higher education being active in the campaign against him.

GUN CLEANER KILLED

LANCASTER, O., Sept. 23—Virgil R. Edwards, 16, was dead today from a head wound suffered when a revolver he was cleaning at his home was discharged.

Army Takes Over

It looks like the army has taken over. Here the boys are enjoying a house party tendered in their honor by "Janie" (Joyce Reynolds) who plays the title role in the new comedy hit by that name, coming to the Grand Sunday for a three day engagement. In the language of Hollywood "Janie" is a "sleeper" which translated into ordinary language means it is a much greater box office attraction than was expected of it. Robert Hutton, Edward Arnold, Ann Harden, Robert Benchley, Alan Hale, Hattie McDaniel are featured.

Private Clifford Vance, stationed somewhere in New Guinea, has received the good conduct medal, according to a letter received by his mother, Mrs. Laura B. Vance, 600 North Scioto street. He tells also of going fishing.

Private Vance left the United States in February, 1944. His address is APO 6, care of the postmaster, San Francisco, Cal.

Captain Gail Wolfe, who spent a 21-day furlough in Circleville with his wife, Mrs. Ann Denman Wolf, Northridge road, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wolf, North Court street, left Saturday for Nashville, Tenn., for reassignment. Capt. Wolfe, of the U. S. A. F. Transport Command, recently returned to the United States after many months of service in the Burma-India-China theatre. He was accompanied to Nashville by Mrs. Wolf.

Private Lawrence W. Reid has had a change made in his address and would be glad to hear from his friends. Mail should be addressed: ASN 35235598, Co. D. 62nd Bn. 2nd Platoon, Camp Wolters, Texas. Pvt. Reid is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Reid, of Williamsport Route 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reichelderfer of Stoutsville have received word from their son, S/Sgt. Edward Reichelderfer that he has reached an undisclosed destination. S/Sgt. Reichelderfer has been located at Camp Roberts, Cal., since entering the service December 5, 1941. He was sent recently to Ford Ord, Cal. and then overseas. He is in communications division of the Infantry. Another son, S/Sgt. Robert Reichelderfer has been overseas since last October. He was sent to England and then to France on D-Day. He is in the medical corps and has been in the service two years. A third son,

During the collection period which ended Sept. 1 landowners paid $259,290.31 real estate taxes, the treasurer's records show, bringing to $535,992.11 revenue from 1943 taxes.

The June collection in 1943 was $253,173.27.

The last half collection this year is as high as many first half collections, which are usually much larger because many landowners pay taxes for the entire year during the first half collection.

First half collection in 1944 also was high, $276,701.89 being paid in as compared with $26,077.74 during the similar period the year before.

Only a small per cent of landowners failed to pay taxes for 1943, the records show. Mr. Colville estimated that the delinquencies probably represented a smaller amount than in any recent year.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Suit for divorce was filed in common pleas court Friday by Enid A. Denham against Edwin S. Denham. The plaintiff charges gross neglect. The couple was married in 1930 and has three children.

Three members of Boy Scout Troop 5 of Kingston were advanced at a board of review conducted following the regular meeting of the troop Wednesday night.

Roy "Dusty" Rhoades and John Ortmann were examined and passed their second class scouting requirements. Richard Evans was passed on the following merit badges: woodworking, aviation and home repair. John Ortmann passed woodworking, machinery, gardening and home repair badges.

Rev. L. V. Bauguess, Scout committeeman, was in charge of the review.

October 2 is fly free date in Pickaway county for 1944, according to T. H. Parks, state entomologist, who made a recent survey of the Hessian fly situation in Pickaway county.

Best record for years was recorded by Pickaway farmers during 1944. Mr. Parks reported. He said only one percent of the wheat seedlings were infested with the Hessian fly in this county during the year.

Mr. Parks attributes this good showing to the fact that more farmers in the county held the seeding of wheat until it was safe from infestation by the Hessian fly.

He recommended that no wheat be seeded this fall in the county until after October 2.

Mr. Parks assured farmers that by following these recommendations there will be practically no loss from damage by the Hessian fly.

no steel was to go to Nelson's conversion plan. This meant that, after a manufacturer had cleared all the other hurdles—had secured the OK of the Manpower Commission and every one else—then, after all that, he would be unable to get the one material absolutely vital to production—steel.

Banker Anderson took his arbitrary stand despite the fact that a confidential report prepared by Charles E. Wilson's economists stated:

"Over-all shipments of steel since the 4th quarter of 1943 have been running well ahead of actual use. Carbon steel inventories at the end of 1943 were some 6 percent above Sept. 30, 1943. Another increase occurred during the first quarter of 1944. At the end of June (1944), carbon steel inventories increased by about a million tons and were close to a full quarter's use. Two and three-quarter million tons of carbon steel are excess inventories and over a 60-day supply.

However, this report was suppressed and the two men who made it resigned from WPP.

Concluding chapter in the blocking of civilian reconversion occurred very quietly just a few days ago, when Nelson's successor, "Cap" Krug, issued an order overruling banker Anderson and allocating 120,000 tons of steel for civilian reconversion.
